TAPPING LAKE.

A Misapprehension Corrected.

The Truckee Republican alluding to the scheme of tapping Lake Tahoe says:

"As we have remarked before it will be necessary for the Nevada folks to obtain permission of the California folks before they undertake the above scheme. It is hardly probable that the people will care to part with the water privileges which they possess in Lake Tahoe.

Does the Republican hold that under any known water law, the people of California own the water in Lake Tahoe which lies this side the line? Hardly. The people who propose to utilize the waters of Lake Tahoe, do not propose in any way to lessen the waters now flowing down the Truckee River.

The water in the Truckee River is being wasted every year by the unenterprising and short sighted people who live along its banks. They do not however want Nevada to use the water which they annually waste.

In the same issue the Republican editorially remarks:

Something ought to be done towards utilizing the magnificent water power which exists in the Truckee river. Enough power goes to waste here every year, which, were it properly applied would turn the wheels of industry in half of the manufactures of the State.

Here is a clear acknowledgement that the water is being wasted. In that case does California propose to keep Nevada from using it because California is talking about it. How ever this is neither here nor there. Nevada does not propose to deprive California of any of its water rights. It is proposed to build a dam at the headwaters of the Truckee three feet high to cause the waters of the Lake to rise in Winter three feet higher than now. This would give a body of water thirty miles long, fifteen miles wide and three feet thick, which has heretofore run to waste.

This amount of water would be all that the tunnel projectors would need, and more too. The surplus could be given to California in the Summer when it needs it most. In other words this scheme would be of lasting benefit to the California interests lying along the Truckee. These men would reap a benefit from Nevada's enterprise and when the nature of the enterprise is more fully understood we do not believe there will be any more growling from over the Sierra Range.

Stewart at Work.

Senator Stewart has been hard at work since he went to Washington, on the Mint proposition. He recently called on the President and showed him the law on the subject, to the effect that Congress had provided for the Mint, and that it ought to be run in accordance with the law. The President's reply, as reported in the Republican, was:

"I think you may be right; I shall give this matter further consideration."

The Director of Mints sides with Stewart unequivocally. The Mint is not liable to be closed.

New Railroad Project.

The Battle Mountain Central Nevada of last Tuesday says:

The question of building a railroad from here north by way of Tuscarora, is being considered by Eastern capitalists; the proposition is to extend the Nevada Central not only to Tuscarora, but clear through to the Snake river in Idaho. What will be done in the matter is hard to say, but it is probable, that such a road will be built at no distant day, and that it would be a paying property.

The Lottery Craze.

The mania for lottery tickets is increasing here every month. The agents report new buyers all the while. One agent said to the writer yesterday:

"You would be astonished if I told you the ladies here who purchase tickets; some as high as ten a month."

Who are they?"

"I would lose their custom if I told. Mum's the word with me, every time."

The Reno Murder Case.

The preliminary examination of Moore for the killing of his daughter, has begun in Reno. The following is an extract from the Gazette's report of the trial:

At half past 3 o'clock Mrs. Moore was engaged in telling the Court how Alice was killed by her father on the night of April 1st, 1885. She said he had been shearing sheep and did not come home until about 8 o'clock; that he whipped Alice brutally, then ate his supper, that while eating, Alice said it was the last beating he would ever give her; that after finishing his supper he knocked her down and fell upon his knees on her breast; that the girl cried for help, and her brother, Lafayette, going to her relief was knocked aside; that the witness ran out of doors and cried for help; that afterwards she entered the kitchen where the act was committed, and found Alice dying.

Curious Phosphorescence.

The Walker Lake Bulletin has the following: For an hour or two after dark a curious phosphorescent light may be seen just under the eaves on the western sides of some of the rough sheds around town. It is probably some phosphorescent form of lime which has been lodged on the rough boards during the recent winds. These phosphorescents require to be fed with light as the common match-box-faces and watch crystals. That the luminous streaks are only seen on the west side of rough sheds, may be accounted for by the direction of the prevailing winds sending the particles of lime against that side, and the rough boards just under the eaves would catch in their splinters a greater portion. The light which is absorbed from the setting sun is not all given out for something over an hour after dark and the effect is very striking.

Mrs. Lorillard to Race in Her Own Name.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Mrs. George L. Lorillard will return from Europe in time to look after the general management of her thoroughbred horses during the Spring, Summer and Autumn. She will be on the grand stand at Sheepshead Bay in June when the great Suburban handicap will be decided. Mrs. Lorillard will race in her own name this year. Last year she ran her thoroughbreds in the name of the Locust stable. The determination of Mrs. Lorillard to race in her own name is likely to work an epoch in turf history on this side of the Atlantic.

The N. & C. Railroad to be Extended.

Colonel E. L. Heriot, Superintendent of the N. & C. Railroad has telegraphed from New York, that the grading on the extension from Moran, is to be commenced on the first of April. It is proposed to extend the road 55 miles this season, and also to take up the first ten miles of track out of Reno and put down steel rails, which including the steel needed for the extension, has already been purchased. E. C. McClellan, the civil engineer, will leave here on Friday with a corps of assistants, to make the necessary survey.

—It is claimed that Indians grabhook the trout below the Reduction Works dam, at Reno, every night, and that each morning they carry to the market from 300 to 400 pounds of trout. This should be stopped by the officers. It is their duty to enforce the law, which prohibits such practices.
